According to experimental reports and confirmation of the worlds academic organizations as well as great numbers of consumers, "Kang Yuan" is worthy of its reputation as a liver protecting, anti-aging health food. Liver ailments are thorny problem in human medicine. Western medical doctors can't always solve liver problems such as hepatitis and others. These days' people are not only infected by various types of the hepatitis virus, but they also come in contact with numerous materials that are harmful to the liver in daily life. For example: to increase their yield, farmers use pesticides on fruits and vegetables, vendors spray vegetables with antiseptics to prolong the shelf life. Most of our foods, no matter how fresh, salted, fried or roasted contain some chemicals. Also the use of cleaners, rinses, the mist of smoke in the air all damage the liver.

The harms of chemicals to the liver is well documented. We can see many injuries and like hepatitis on the livers of poultry and livestock in our markets. These symptoms show that most of the meat that we eat everyday is polluted by chemicals. Also antibiotics are mixed in the feeds of animals to prevent diseases; these meats containing large quantities of chemicals go into consumers' mouths. Everyone knows that alcohol is bad for the liver,
